

Edward Redlich Obtains Designation by The Society of Industrial and Office Realtors (SIOR)

MIAMI, FL – August 19, 2008 – Edward J. Redlich, SIOR, CCIM, Vice-President of ComReal Miami, is now one of only twenty commercial real estate professionals here in Miami to have obtained the coveted SIOR designation. At the age of only 35, he is the youngest SIOR in Miami and one of the few professionals worldwide that now possess the SIOR-CCIM dual designation. These are the highest designations that exist in the commercial real estate industry.

His fellow ComReal associate, Stephen H. Smith, SIOR, is a long time member of the prestigious group and one of its past Florida Chapter Presidents. “These affiliations provide us with the capability to serve our clients' commercial real estate needs on both national and international levels,” states Redlich.

Ed Redlich has been with ComReal for nearly 15 years and is now its Vice-President of the Industrial Division. His corporate clients include Goodyear Tire, Burger King, Enterprise Rent-A-Car, and General Electric, to name a few. Current industrial projects include the 180,000 sq. ft. Airport International Center and the 196,000 sq. ft. Eastgate Business Park. Eastgate is a new warehouse development project in The Homestead Park of Commerce in which Redlich is both an equity partner and co-developer with Smith. Redlich recently made the Miami commercial real estate news with his representation of Costex Corporation in its $21,000,000 purchase of a 17-acres site on the Palmetto Expressway. Costex will construct its new 300,000 sq. ft. Miami-headquarters and distribution facility on the former Farm Stores HQ site.
